

« Liveblogging! "It's Too Damn Early," 1/1/11

Early example of noise art in literature! »

Startling Moniker's Top 12 Best Happy Neat-o List of 2010!

By startlingmoniker

Amazingly, this year's Best Happy Neat-o List is on-time, a nice touch for its 5th Anniversary! But professionalism be damned, I've decided to add 4 "honorable mentions" this time around—obsessive music geeks take note, and please adjust your Star Wars figurine/obscure sound art purchase budgets accordingly. As always, this list is given in no particular order:

5) Gen Ken Montgomery - "Birds + Machines" — I don't know if anything Gen Ken Montgomery does is "good" or not. What I do know is that even among sound and listening enthusiasts, Montgomery is a cut above, being absolutely fascinated with sound in such a way that life must surely be a constant source of amusement and interest. This disc is further evidence to the fact, radiating with Montgomery's passion and infectious excitement.